Tweet.. Humanity Welfare Organization Helpline (HWOH) is the brainchild of Javed Ahmed Tak, a paraplegic since 1999.. Javed was shot in the spine by unidentified gunmen who were persuading him to join their ranks and become a militant.. Javed's refusal cost him his ability to walk.. He was confined to bed and after major surgeries is now able to use a wheelchair.. Javed did not lose faith or hope in himself.. To channel his energies, he started teaching orphans of conflict at his home for free.. The children later became his networkers and they reached out to those that are marginalised and destitute, as well as sufferers of disability in any form.. In 2005, the small initiative expanded to include basic computer literacy for orphan children and youth.. Raised on public donations and gifted by social and charity organisations, computers became 'social connectors' and tools of empowerment, especially for young girls.. The first batch of girls participated in capacity building workshops organised by Women in Security, Conflict Management and Peace.. ... Rights and Youth (CRY) to conduct research and to identify children affected by any form of disability, including those who were victims of landmines or weapons.. With the help of CRY funds, HWOH now runs a school for 20 physically challenged children.. For Javed and his team, peace in Kashmir is possible when rights of all are respected and included.. Working under the larger framework of Human Rights, HWOH endeavours to link issues of peace with justice for all.. HWOH is also actively involved in monitoring human rights violations of disabled people.. Individually, Javed has been advocating at various forums, locally and at the national level against small arms and weapons.. This is an area with which he wishes to intervene more actively for peace in Kashmir.. The organisation is currently looking for funding to build a barrier free school and to establish a physiotherapy centre for severely disabled people.. « Previous organisation.. Next organisation »..
